(Merry Christmas and Happy New Year to all)

Let us remember our brothers lost within the past twelve months:

- Charter Member Joe O'Connor - December 1, 2015
- Charter Member Ron Cullen - July 18, 2016
- Ed Cranshaw - July 19, 2016
- Larry Pratt - July 20, 2016
- Vice President Jeff Fitzpatrick - October 14, 2016

PRESIDENT'S CORNER

Dear Brothers,

Following our Division election, I have met with a majority of the 2016 division officers to begin our turnover. President Elect Shawn Lenahan and his officers and I have met already and we have begun a turnover. The next year will be very exciting for us all and I will continue to support our Division and our soon to be appointed 2017 officers.

This month we will hold another Shamrock Degree. We will initiate two more candidates approved by the Division. Please continue to steadily grow our Division with the outstanding Hibernians we have seen throughout this year. A recap of our year is very long and I will shorten what we have done for charity in our community and at our parishes. In 2016, we participated in over 68 Division events and fundraisers together. I can say that I made almost every one of them! Most memorable were the parades, scholarship presentations, the 3d Annual Shamrock Charity Golf Tournament, the Trip for Two to Ireland raffle sales, and representing Meagher Division for our September Quarterly meeting. I would be remiss not to mention also witnessing the 100 anniversary of the 1916 Easter Rising and the AOH 2016 National Convention in Atlantic City where we had 6 Division Brothers present for voting in our elections.

As this year closes out, the Division's 2d Annual Division Christmas party at St. Michael the Archangel H.S on Sunday, December 11 and two wreath-laying ceremonies honoring the Irish participated in the Battle of Fredericksburg. One ceremony was at the Irish Memorial and the other at the Kirkland Memorial also on December 11.

Irish Blessing

Deep peace of the running wave to you
Deep peace of the flowing air to you
Deep peace of the quiet earth to you
Deep peace of the shining stars to you
Deep peace of the Son of Peace to you

In Friendship, Unity, and Christian Charity,

Richard Andrew Link, II
2016 President
Gen. Thomas F. Meagher Division

“The Celt would forfeit his title to the respect of the civilized world, did he not fight with all his heart and all his soul and all his cunning against the empire which has despoiled him and murdered his kin, now with arms, now with artificial famine. There can be no peace between the two people until either Ireland is a desert or is free. It is war to the knife, and the knife to the hilt. There can be neither truce nor compromise.”

Marshal Paul O'Brien: Paul joined the General Meagher Division in November 2013 at which time he received the Shamrock Degree in 2013 and the Major Degrees in 2014. Paul was elected to serve the Division as Sentinel for 2016.

Paul was born in Boston, Massachusetts on August 12, 1947. He graduated from Saint Kevin's Elementary School and Catholic Memorial High School (Christian Brothers of Ireland) in Boston. He also holds a Bachelor of Science Degree in Government from Suffolk University in Boston, Massachusetts.

Paul served in the United States Air Force from 1967 to 1971. He then began a 33-year Federal career serving in the Departments of Treasury, Defense and State. Since retiring from the Department of State in October 2004, he has worked in several security-related positions to include role-playing for the FBI and DEA Academies in Quantico, Virginia. Paul also volunteered for four years at the National Park Service,

Paul is proud of his Irish roots. His paternal side comes from Belfast by way of County Clare, while his mother's people (Kelliher) hail from Tralee. He has been to Ireland three times and while in South Africa he was able to visit the grave of his great-grandfather, Bernard O'Brien, who was killed in April 1901 while serving in the British army during the Boer War.

Paul is married to the former Patricia Noreen O'Brien (43 Years) of Boston, Massachusetts. They have three children: Timothy Daniel, David Leo and Meaghan Patricia. They have also been blessed with three grandsons: Colin, Mason and Benjamin. Paul and Patty O'Brien are parishioners of Saint Jude Catholic Church and reside in Spotsylvania County, Virginia.

Paul's other memberships include: 3rd Degree Knight of Columbus, Saint Jude of Massaponax Council 13599; American Legion Post 320; National Association of Retired Federal Employees, Chapter 90; and Assistant Director of Oblates, Mary Mother of the Church Abbey, Richmond, Virginia. Sentinel Jack Grey: John, or Jack, as he is usually called, was born in Wisconsin, graduated the University there, and came to Virginia in the late 50's. He worked for 43 years at Naval Surface Warfare Center, Dahlgren, as a physicist, mathematician and Operations Research analyst. He holds degrees in Physics and Mathematics, having done graduate work at the University of Wisconsin, George Washington University and University of Oklahoma.

Jack wanted to join the Hibernians for several years and his wishes were answered in 2015. Jack he received both the Shamrock and Major Degrees and served as the division Recording Secretary in 2016. Recently his oldest daughter, Teri, became a certified genealogist. Through her research and documentation from the Irish National Society of Dublin, Ireland, she found the family records. Great, great, grandfather Gray came to America before 1900, and the family migrated eventually to Wisconsin. Here his son met with much prejudice because he would work whatever jobs were available. For that he was hated by others. So, to avoid the prejudice, he anglicized the spelling to Grey. Whether that worked for him, we don't know but the spelling has remained with the Grey family. True to Irish heritage, there are many family stories, but for now, Jack is happy to have become a Hibernian and looks forward to the brotherhood found in the organization. Jack served as the division recording secretary in 2016.

Jack and Rochelle moved to Virginia where they raised four children, have 10 grandchildren and 5 great grandsons. They live in Stafford where recently they celebrated their 59th wedding anniversary with family. They have been members of St. Mary church in Fredericksburg for 50 years; he is a 50+ year member of Knights of Columbus 4034, and of the Fourth Degree of the Knights of Columbus.

Battle of Fredericksburg Commemoration

Riamh Nar dhruid O sbairn lan

Again this year the General Meagher Division tradition of presenting wreaths honoring the men of the Irish Brigade was accomplished at the City Dock and at Marye's Heights (the Sunken Road). It was a bitter cold day and the brothers who attended deserve our special thanks.

Take note: On this bitter cold day, the four brothers presenting wreaths represent the senior most of our brothers: Hugh O'Brien, Jack Grey, Frank Connors and Bill Phillips

Meagher Division 2016 Hibernian of the Year

Paul O'Brien

Paul was an active participant in every Division event in 2016. He served as Sentinel; as Heritage Committee member, Paul was instrumental in all IAHM activities; he volunteered on the Golf Committee; and he was a member of the Shamrock Degree team. Paul also made a special effort to honor our deceased brothers at wakes and funeral masses.

AMERICA'S FIRST CHRISTMAS CARDS

By Mike McCormack, AOH National Historian

In 1982, archeologist Dr. Robert Pyle investigated a petroglyph, or rock carving, in Wyoming County, West Virginia. Many such carvings exist whose origins are shrouded in mystery, but Pyle thought this one unique for the carving looked like early runic writing. He lichen-dated it as having been carved between 500 and 700 AD. He recorded every detail of the carving in 18 separate visits, and gave the story to a local newspaper. A reader clipped the article and sent it to the West Virginia Chamber of Commerce which published it in their periodical: Wonderful West Virginia. A copy of the magazine was sent to Ida Jane Gallagher - a native West Virginian working as a free-lance writer in Connecticut. She saw a similarity between the carving and one she had photographed in New England, and she contacted the editor for more information. She was invited to visit the petroglyph. In November 1982, Robert Pyle led her up a steep bank to a rock ledge, where Ms. Gallagher took her first look at the 10-foot long inscription carved on a recessed portion of the cliff face beneath a natural rock overhang. She was convinced that it was a major find, and contacted Harvard Professor Barry Fell, an expert on ancient epigraphic inscriptions and President of the International Epigraphic Society. When Dr. Fell saw the carving he recognized it as Ogham -- an ancient Celtic script he had studied in Ireland. He agreed to a translation.

He translated the Ogham into Old Irish, from Old Irish into modern Irish and then into English. When the message was deciphered, it became obvious that its validity would be easy to confirm. It read, A ray will graze the notch on the left side, at the time of sunrise at Christmas, the first season of the year, the season of the blessed advent of the savior Lord Christ, behold he is born of Mary, a woman. It was decided to verify the accuracy of the translation by visiting the carving in December. In ancient times, Christmas was celebrated around the Winter Solstice, so a small group met at the petroglyph on the night of December 21, 1982. Quietly they waited as the dawn sun climbed behind them to a height where it spilled over the mountains and streamed its rays toward the cliff face before them. They watched in amazement as the first shaft of sunlight funneled through a previously unnoticed notch in the cliff overhang, and like a flashlight beam, struck the dead center of a sun symbol at the left end of the panel. Since the sun rises in a slightly different spot each morning, its rays directly hit that sun spot at no other time of the year. Transfixed, they watched the beam expand as the sun rose, pushing the shadow from left to right, slowly bathing the entire message in sunlight like a prehistoric neon sign announcing yet another Christmas as it had done for centuries. Before their eyes, they had received a Christmas message across the ages. Here was a message that was definitely Christian, carved in the 6th century and carved in Ogham -- a cipher used at that time only by the Irish! Shortly after publishing their remarkable find, the investigative team learned of another petroglyph at Horse Creek in nearby Boone County. This one was larger than the first. Dr. Fell called it a sensational find. He believed it to be the world's longest Ogham message and dated it between the 6th and 8th century. This 3-line message, when deciphered, read, A happy season is Christmas, a time of joy and goodwill to all people. The second line read; A virgin was with child; God ordained her to conceive and be fruitful. Behold a miracle. The third line read, She gave birth to a son in a cave. The name of the cave was the Cave of Bethlehem. His foster father gave him the name Jesus, the Christ, Alpha and Omega. Festive season of prayer. We may never know the names of those who carved these messages, but their existence provides important proof of an old claim. It has long been known that in the sixth century, Irish monks sailed to distant lands to spread the gospel, and a monk named Brendan wrote of his travels to North America, but the lack of hard evidence made skeptics call his story legend. In 1977, author Timothy Severin duplicated St Brendan's voyage in a leather-covered curragh (Irish sailing boat) built to Brendan's specifications just to prove that it could have been done. Yet, still the skeptics argued that possibility and probability are not proof. Today, the West Virginia petroglyphs provide irrefutable evidence of religious messages, left on these shores between 500 and 800 AD, by Irish Christian missionaries. And each year, at yule tide, the rising sun places a fresh stamp of authenticity on America's first Christmas Cards.

Wyoming County Petroglyph

VERIFICATION

Years after I had written the story of the Wyoming County Petroglyphs, I continued to follow the progress of Dr. Pyle and his team of archeologists. Soon, the story of the American Ogham Stones brought more and more similar carvings to their attention. Dr. Pyle even visited Ireland to examine examples of Ogham in its native environment. As I continued to occasionally document the discoveries, I received a number of photos of a strikingly similar petroglyph – from a friend in County Kerry, Ireland. They were taken near the exact area from which St. Brendan and his monks had sailed. The petroglyph is atop Cahir Mountain outside of Kenmare in Lauragh Parish. Like so many historical artifacts and relics of antiquity in Ireland, locals knew of its existence and referred to it as Cnoc na Scriobh (the Hill of the Writing), but had long ago forgotten its significance. These photos fit into my research like the pieces of an ancient jigsaw puzzle; I stared at them for hours. To the best of my knowledge, they have not been translated or if they have, the translation is not readily available. I profusely thanked the photographer, but when I asked him if he intended to return to shoot any more pictures, he informed me that since it took more than an hour of hard climbing to get to the petroglyph, if I wanted any more pictures, I would have to take them myself!

Cnoc na Scriobh Petroglyph, Cahir Mountain, County Kerry

Since the discoveries of the Wyoming and Boone County petroglyphs, 11 more nearby carvings in West Virginia have been identified as Ogham and are presently under investigation. They fall at varying distances apart on both sides of an ancient natural mountaintop trail created by wind and weather, called Indian Ridge. The trail was used by early natives and animals stretching from Pennsylvania to the Ohio River which was another major travel artery in ancient times.

We know that early Irish missionary monks took to the sea to spread their nets for God, but we know neither how many nor how far they ventured on their mission. The work of the Irish monks who sailed east to Europe is well documented, but how many went west or south? Judging by the complexity and number of petroglyphs in West Virginia alone, there must have been an armada headed for America. Celtic scholars have declared the West Virginia petroglyphs as important to Celtic history as the Dead Sea Scrolls, yet who has heard of them? And why not!

Happy Christmas brothers and rejoice in the fact that we have the heritage we do. And don't forget that on December 21, the lights go on again in Newgrange – and that's another story!

In July 2016 Pope Francis declared “We are living in a moment of annihilation of man as image of God”. He recalled Pope emeritus Benedict’s pronouncement: “It’s the epoch of sin against God, the Creator.”
